F O R T H E R U N N E R W H O L I F T S , T H E L I F T E R W H O R U N S

A hybrid running culture page for the runner who lifts and the lifter who runs. Crew runs, gear drops, race days, coffee stops, everything in between. This document is the rulebook.

WHAT WE ARE. AND WHAT WE AREN'T.

Suor sits in the lift-and-run middle. Not country-club preppy, not full streetwear, not generic fitness. A culture page for the hybrid crowd. Marketer-built. Brand activations in person.

RAW

Streets at 7am. Iron under the lights. Grain on the photo. The brand is allergic to gloss, slogans, and beige confidence.

CREW

Real moments in an aesthetic shoot. The crew first, the hero shot never. 70% culture, 30% the founder.

HYBRID

You squatted heavy yesterday and ran six today. We show the smart way to do both without breaking. Programmed, not improvised.

FOR RUNNERS.
FOR LIFTERS.
FOR HYBRIDS.
FOR THE SWEAT.

TWO MARKS. BOTH LIVE ON WHITE.

The brand has one icon — the drop with strides cut into it as negative space — and one wordmark. The primary surface for both is white. Dark versions exist for one reason only: when the surface is already dark (an IG avatar, a photo, a t-shirt back).

SUOR | SOCIETY

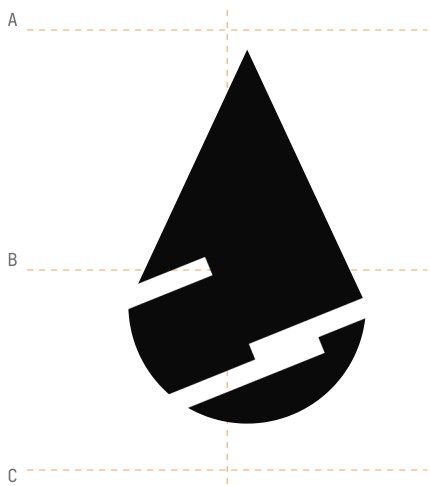

ICON · WHITE SURFACE

avatar / inverted

CONSTRUCTION · THE DROP + STRIDE

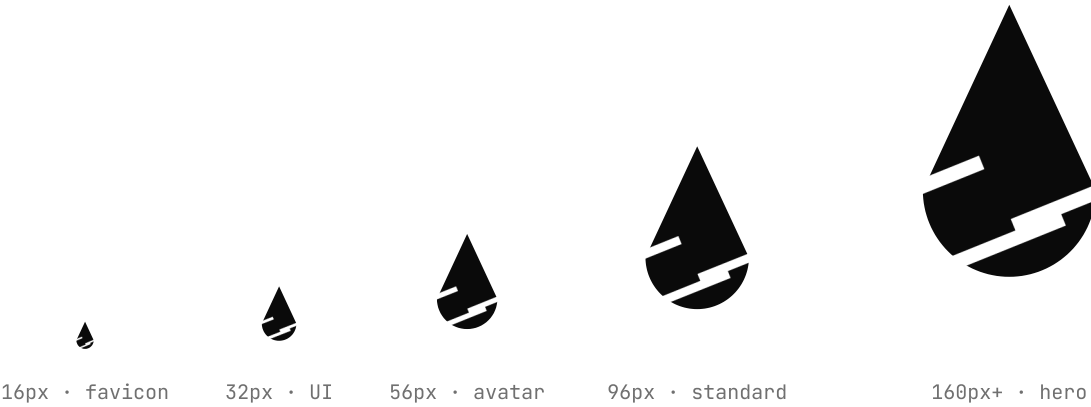

The drop arcs from a single apex at A to a 54° radius at C. Three stride lines, parallel at –22°, are carved as negative space below the equator (B). The drop reads as a drop in a thumbnail and as a runner moving up close. Hides a second layer of meaning.

CLEARSPACE · 1X MINIMUM

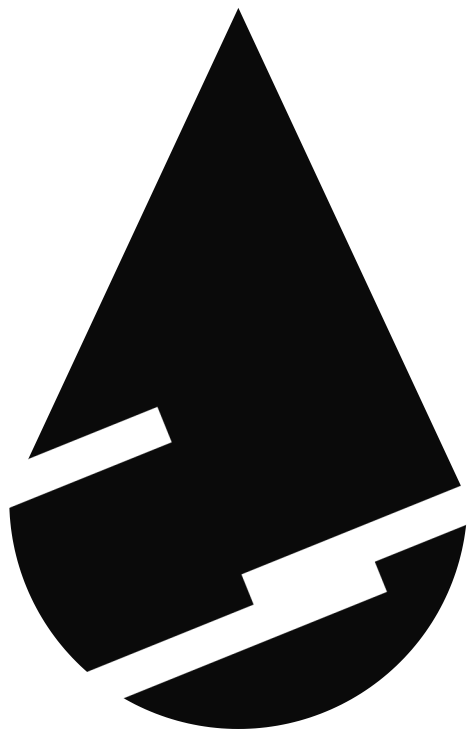

Padding on all sides of the wordmark equals the cap height of the “S”. Nothing breaks that boundary — including other type, photo edges, or device chrome.

MINIMUM SIZES

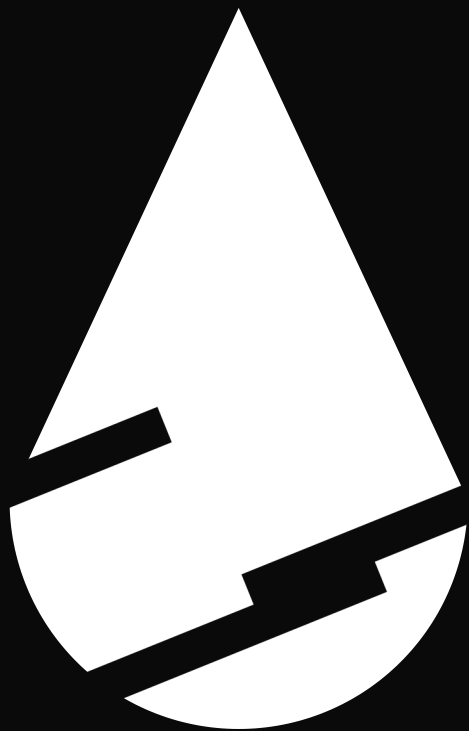

DO

Black on white. Default.

DO

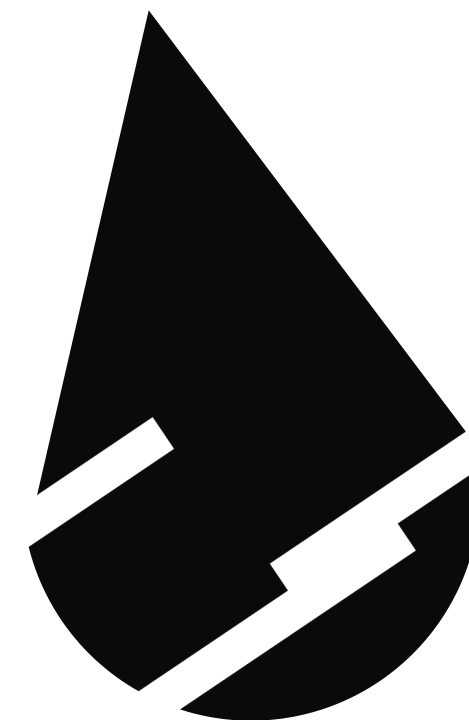

White on dark, for IG avatar or photo overlay.

DON'T

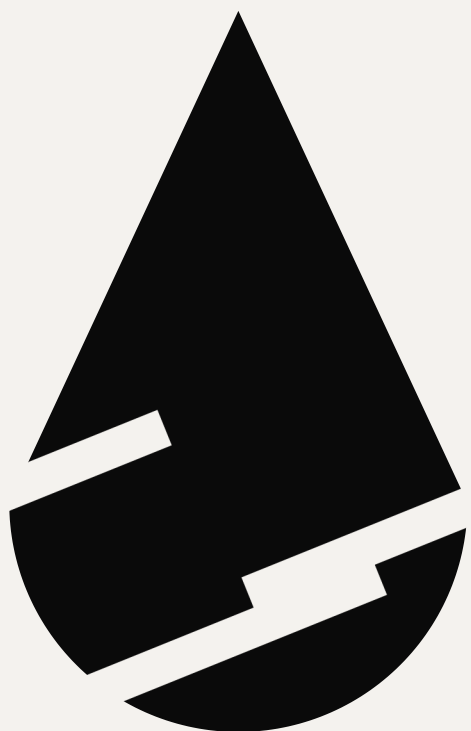

Don't squash, stretch, or skew the drop.

DON'T

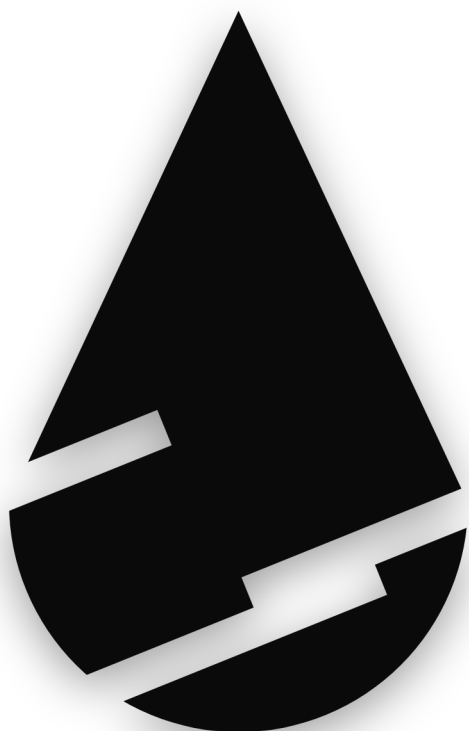

Don't rotate. The strides have a direction.

DON'T

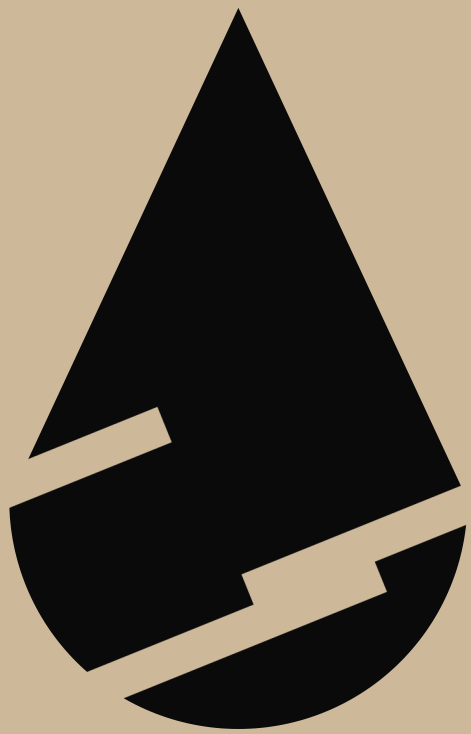

Don't fill with accent color. Black, white, or nothing.

DON'T

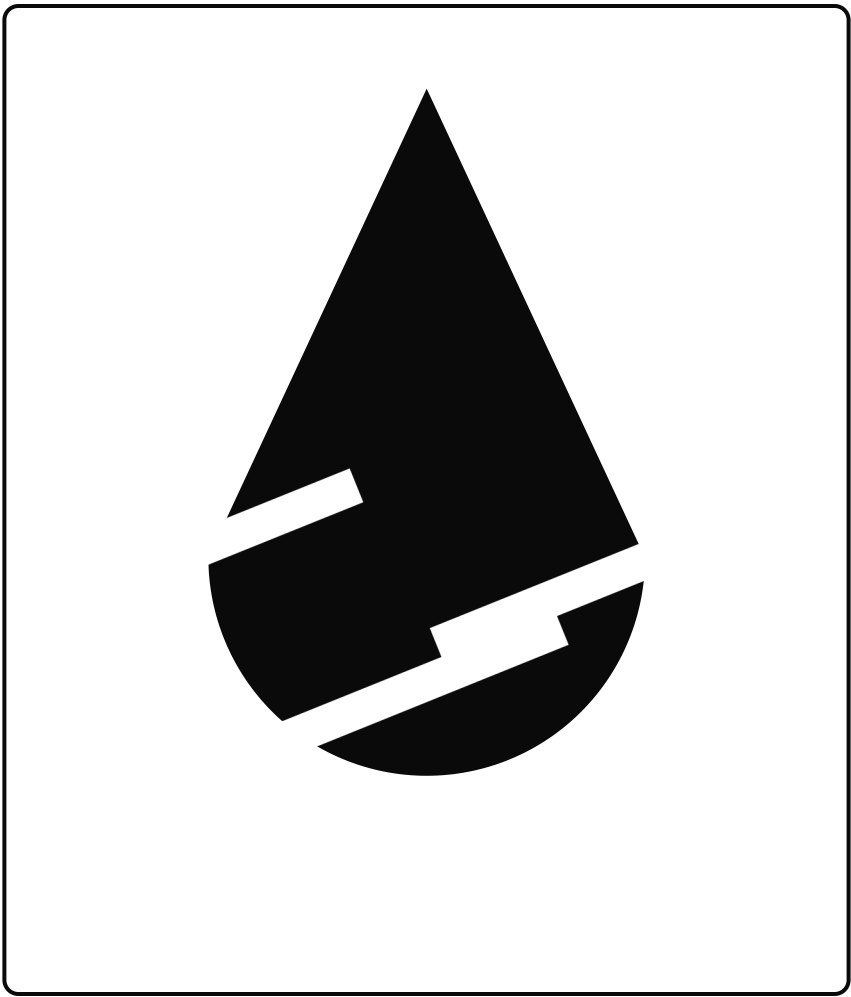

Don't add drop shadows or glows.

DON'T

Don't place on busy or low-contrast photo areas.

DON'T

Don't cage in extra containers or borders.

TWO COLORS DO THE WORK. THREE COLORS DO THE TALKING.

The brand runs on paper white and asphalt black. Sunrise, highlight, and rust appear in small doses — an underline, a stamp word, a single chip. Never as backgrounds. Never as gradients. If a layout needs more color to feel finished, the layout is wrong.

READ IT OUT LOUD. IF IT SOUNDS LIKE A BRAND, REWRITE IT.

Confident, grounded, dry. A friend-who-knows-a-lot-about-running texting you.
No em dashes. No three sentences in a row at the same length. No wrap-up at the end — end on the last point and stop.

● WE SAY

Hell yeah.

Showed up. Counts.

Out the door.

Did the thing.

Not perfect, just consistent.

Holy shit (sparingly).

Bay loop at 7:14.

3 of us out there.

● WE DON'T SAY

~~Let's dive in.~~

~~It hits different.~~

~~Game changer.~~

~~Robust. Holistic.~~

~~Journey. Unlock.~~

~~Elevate. Empower.~~

~~Tapestry. Embark.~~

CULTURE VOICE · 70%

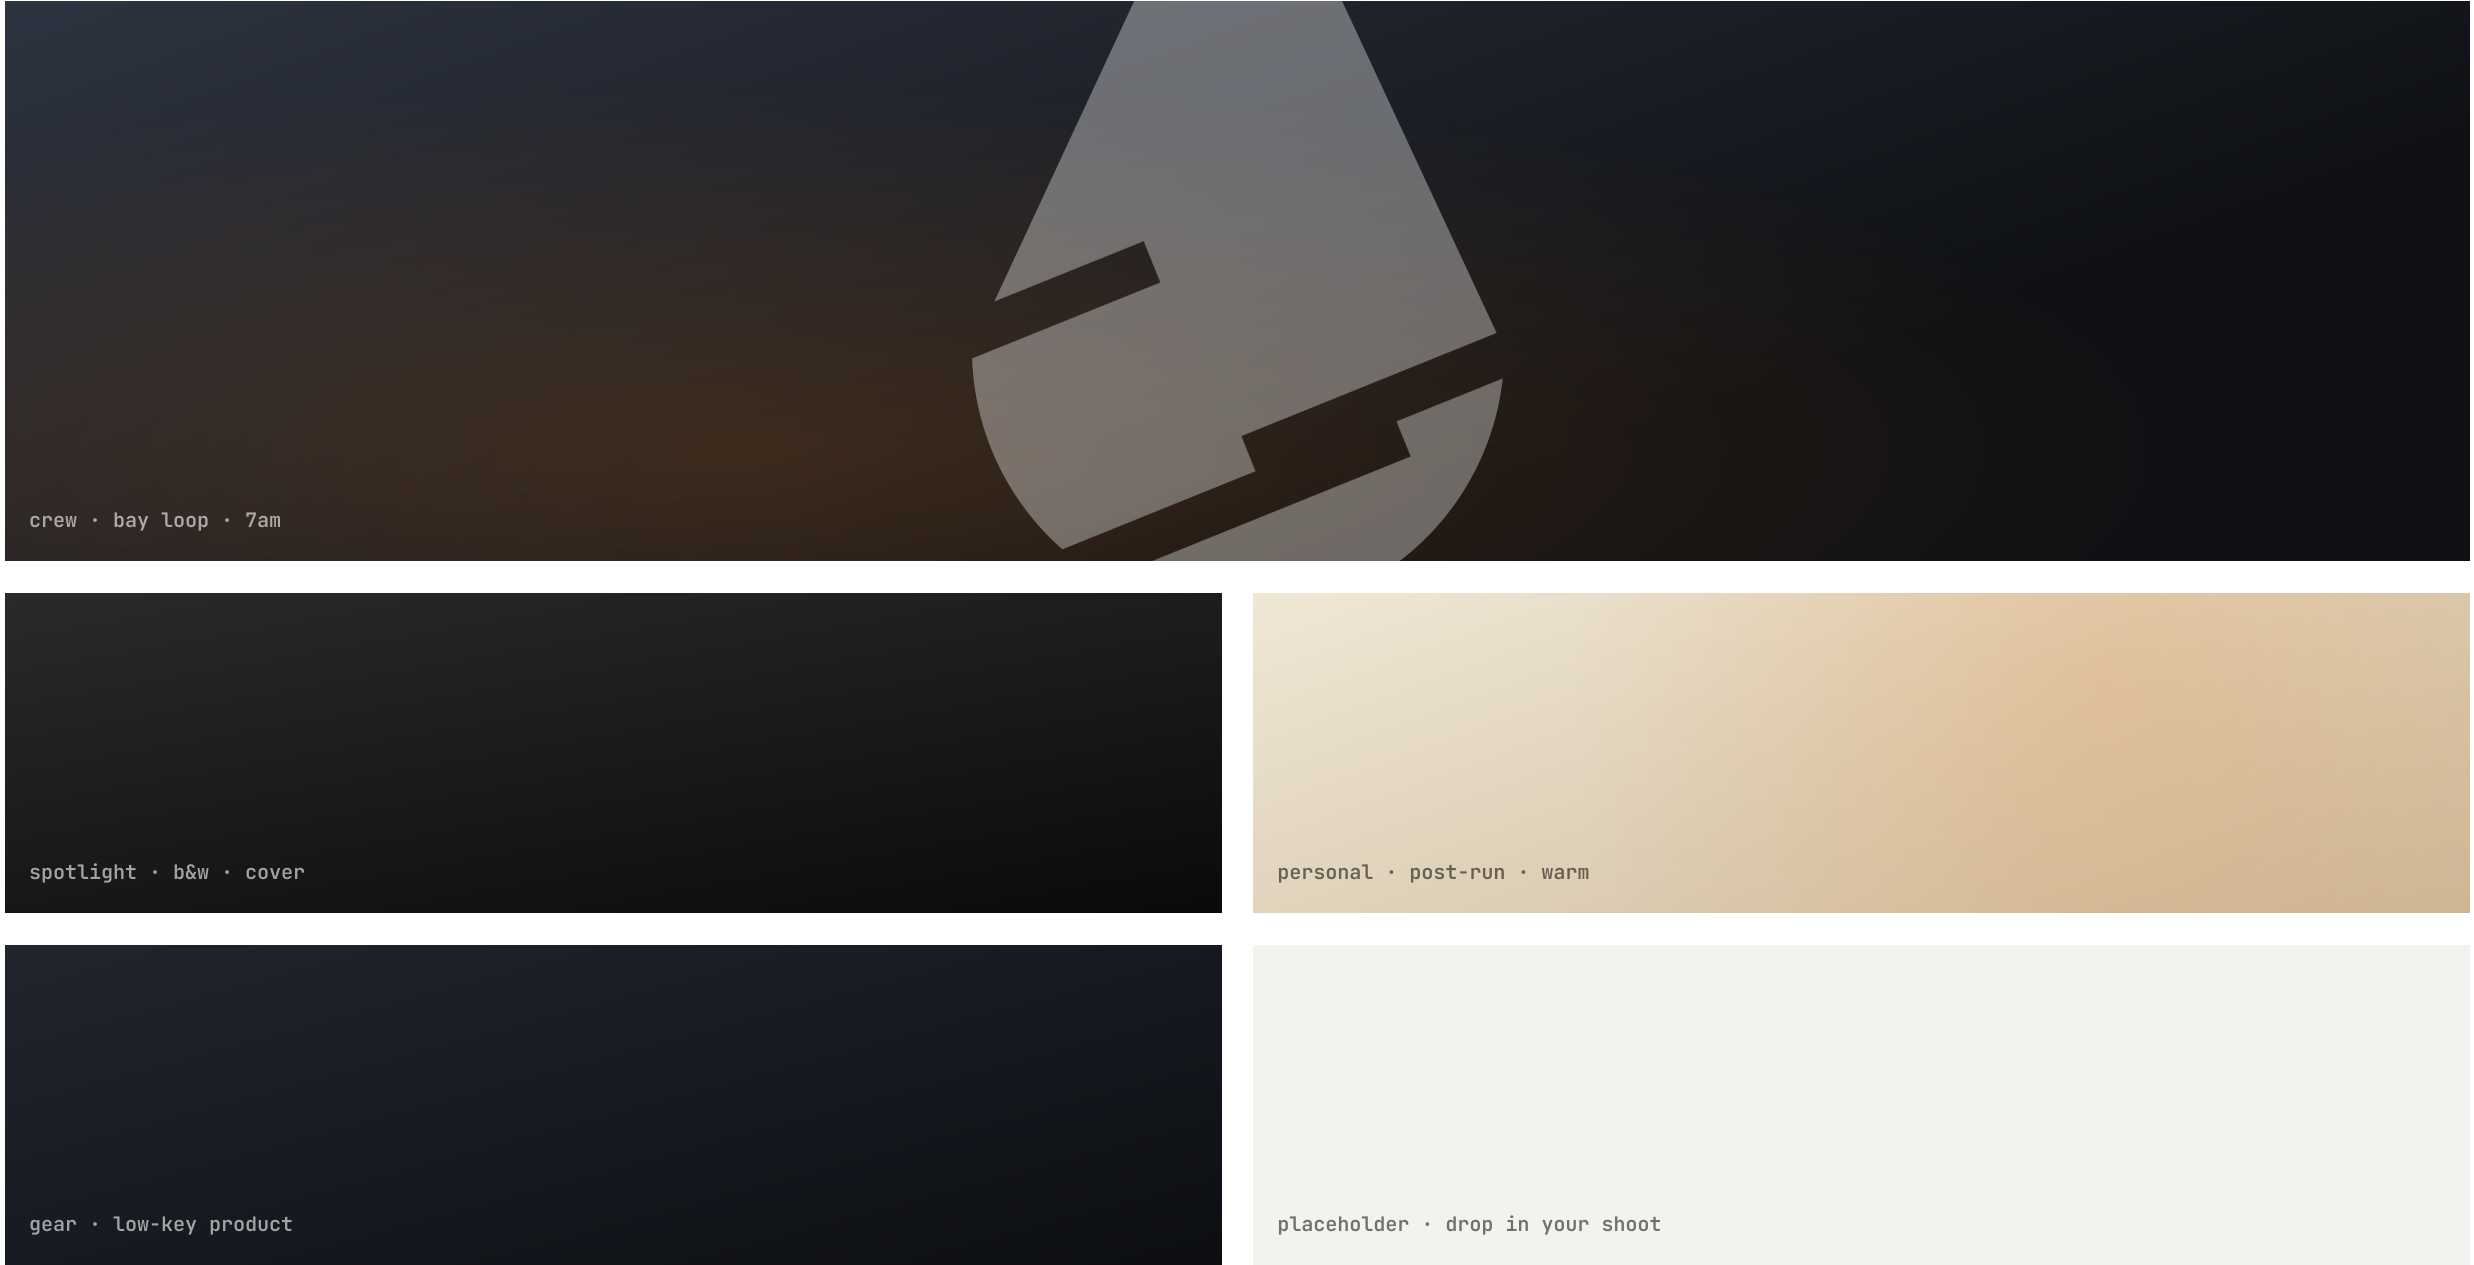

Hybrid runners don't get enough credit. You squatted heavy yesterday and ran 6 today. That's insane.

PERSONAL VOICE · 30%

The bay this morning was that weird purple light kind of cold. 3 of us out there at 7:14. No one wanted to be there. All of us better for it.

GRAIN. CONTRAST. GROUP SHOTS OVER HERO SHOTS.

Two image moods. Culture posts skew darker, urban, high-contrast — asphalt and slate dominant. Personal posts run cleaner, warmer, natural light, retro palette. B&W is welcome, especially for spotlights and editorial covers.

DO

Skew dark in editing. Asphalt and slate dominant. Sunrise and rust pop against dark. Add subtle film grain at 3–5% on dark surfaces for the moodboard’s editorial feel.

DON’T

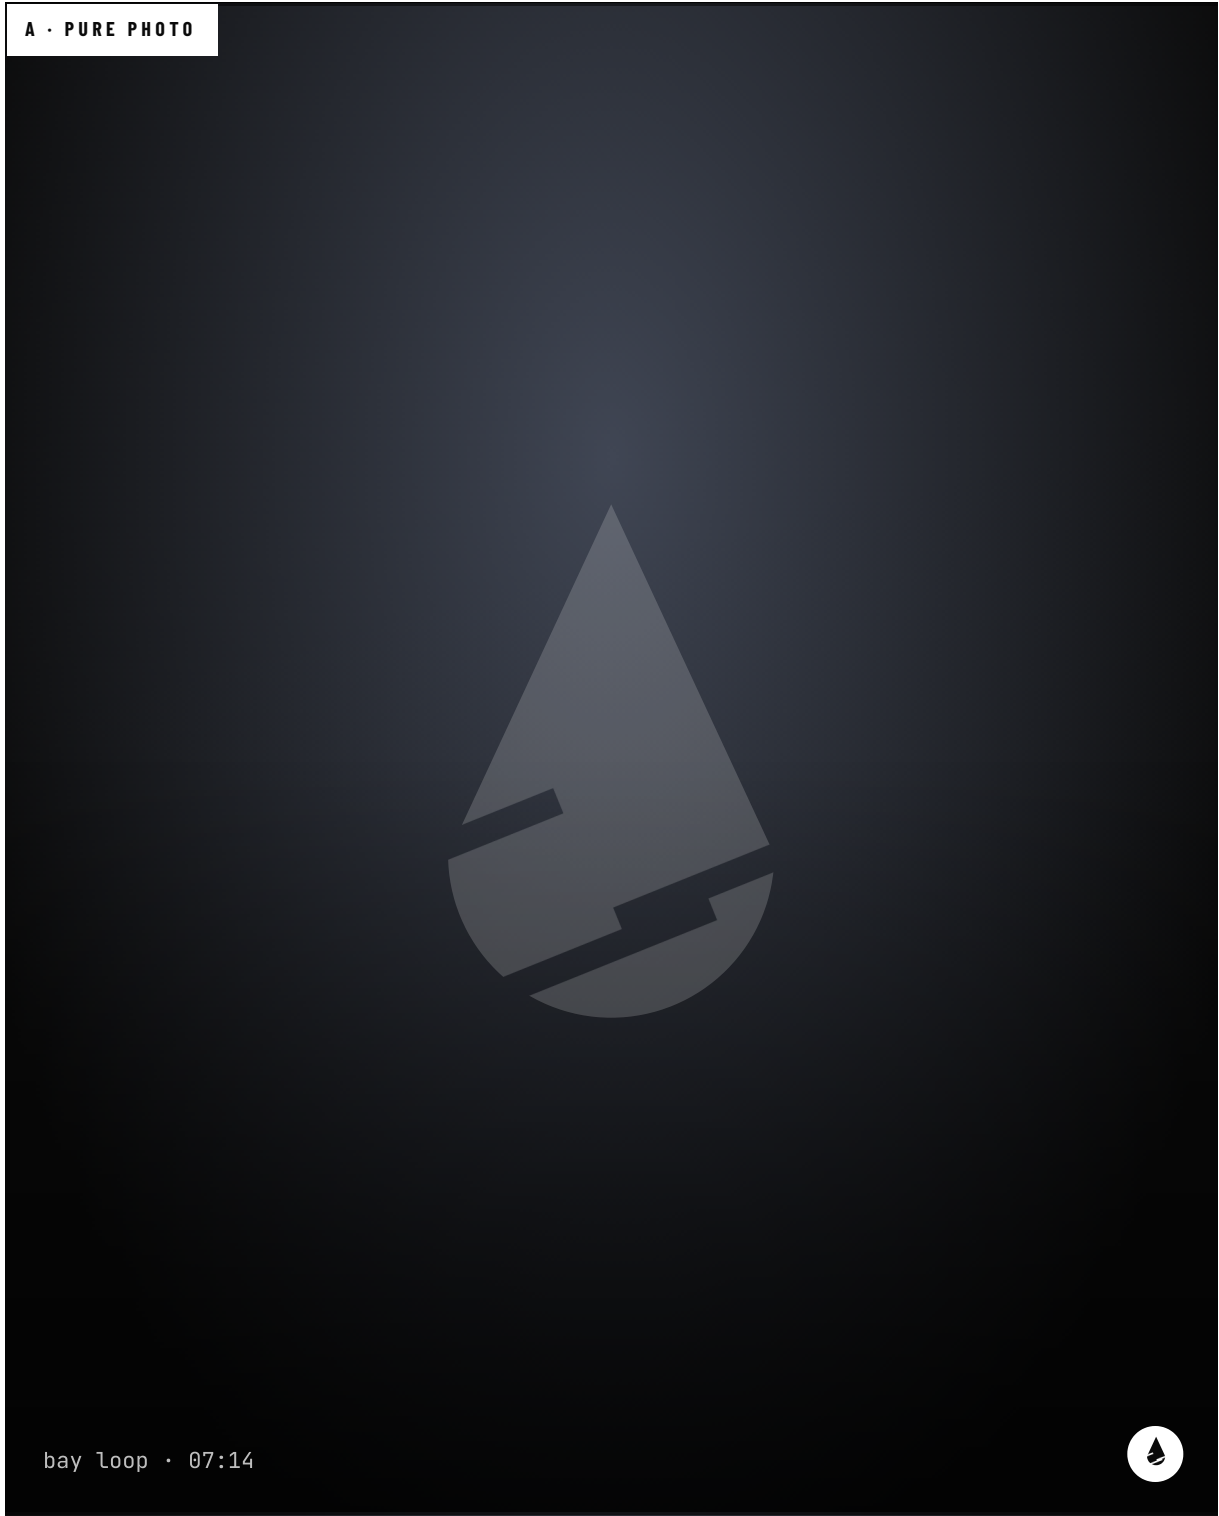

No HDR. No tilt-shift. No filtered orange-and-teal looks. No stock-fitness models. No mid-air leaping silhouettes with the sun behind them.

CAPTION IT

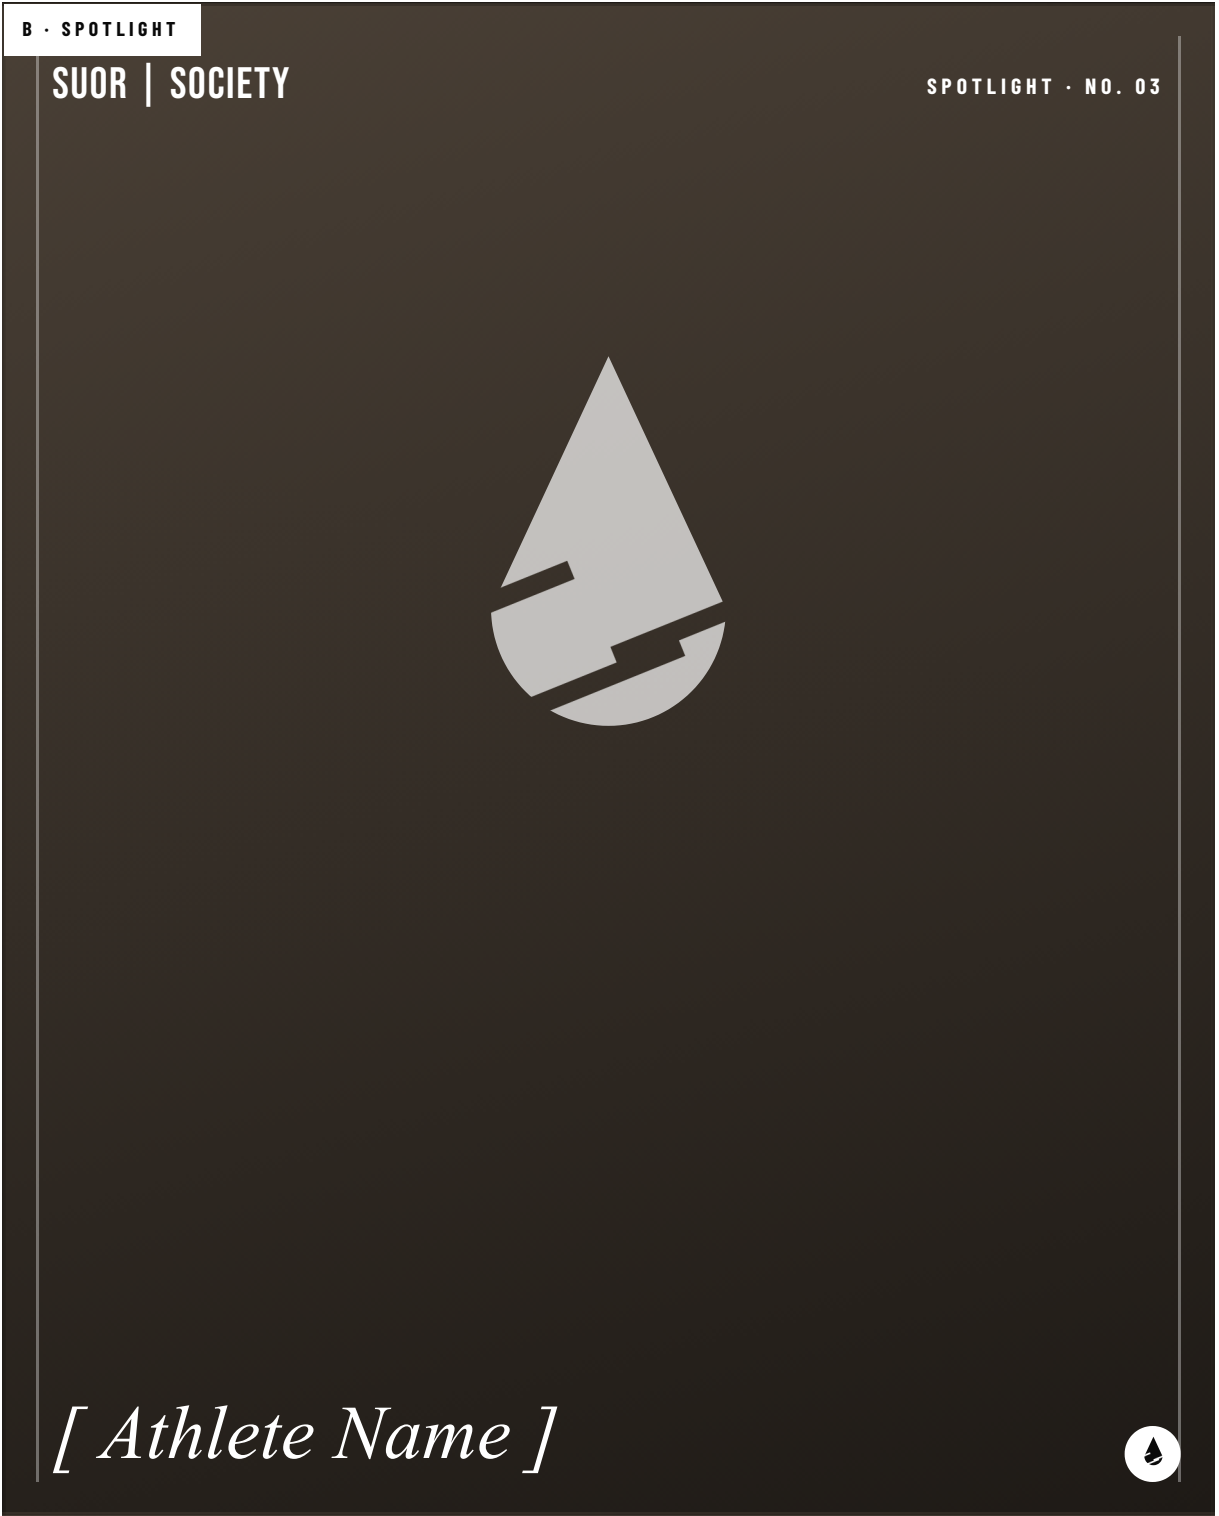

Specific locations beat generic. “Bay loop, 7am” beats “morning run.” “Squat day at the gym” beats “strength training.”

NINE POST TEMPLATES. PICK THE ONE THAT FITS THE MOMENT.

Some posts are pure photo — let the image carry it. Others introduce something, drop something, run a number, or stamp a quote. The format is the message: an editorial spotlight behaves differently than a yellow event poster. Use them on rotation, never two of the same in a row.

A · PURE PHOTO LET THE IMAGE BREATHE. WATERMARK ONLY.

THE CULTURE ARCHIVE. EDITORIAL. SPECIFIC. LONG-FORM ON PURPOSE.

Three blog formats: cover, article, and tile. Covers are full-bleed photo and a kicker. Articles use a three-column rhythm — metadata left, body center, pulled quote right. Tiles run in pairs on the archive index. No hero illustrations. No stock heroes.

FORMAT

LONG-FORM

HE RAN A 50K IN SIX HOURS. THEN HE WENT AND LIFTED.

[Athlete Name] is the answer to a question nobody is asking out loud yet. He squats heavy on Mondays. He does long runs on Saturdays. He thinks the two protect each other. We think he’s right.

We met him at the coffee shop after the run. He drinks his iced oat latte. He talks fast. He has the kind of forearms you don’t expect on a 2:32 marathoner.

“People think you have to choose,” he says, and then doesn’t finish the sentence. He doesn’t need to.

THE WEEK, AS BUILT

His training is not complicated. It is consistent. There is a long run, a tempo, two easy days, two lifts, one off. The lifts are heavy. The easy runs are easy. The hard runs are hard. He does not chase pace on the easy days. He does not skip the strength work on tired legs.

MON	Squat day • strength	60 min
TUE	Easy 8 • bay loop	8.2 mi
WED	Tempo • progression	10 mi
THU	Pull day • strength	55 min
FRI	Easy 5 • shakeout	5.4 mi
SAT	Long run	20 mi
SUN	Off • coffee • pizza	—

YOU CAN’T OUTRUN A MISSED LIFT. AND YOU CAN’T OUTLIFT A MISSED LONG RUN.

The thing he says next is the thing the hybrid people have been saying to each other for years, and it’s the reason we made this page. He says, the squat day is what keeps the long run from breaking him. He says the long run is what keeps the squat from making him stiff.
